

ARE WE READY FOR THE NEXT DISRUPTION?

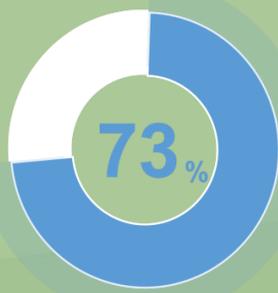

HYBRID WORK

With over 40 percent of the global workforce considering leaving their employer this year, a thoughtful approach to hybrid work will be critical for attracting and retaining diverse talent.

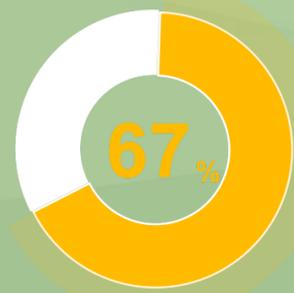

Flexible work is here to stay

Leaders say their company is considering redesigning office space for Hybrid Work.

of employees want flexible remote work options to stay.

of employers want more in-person work or collaboration post-pandemic.

42% employees say they lack essential office supplies at home.

46% employees say their employer does not help them with remote work expenses.

one out of 10 employees working from home don't have an adequate internet connection to do their job at home.

High Productivity is Masking Exhausted Workforce

Time spent in Microsoft Teams meetings has more than doubled (2.5X) globally and, aside from a holiday dip in December, continues to climb.

The average meeting is 10 minutes longer, increasing from 35 to 45 minutes.

The average Teams user is sending 45 % more chats per week and 42 % more chats per person after hours, with chats per week still on the rise.

The number of emails delivered to commercial and education customers in February, when compared to the same month last year, is up by 40.6 billion

A 66 % increase in the number of people working on documents..

High Productivity is Masking Exhausted Workforce

Remote job postings on LinkedIn increased more than five times during the pandemic, and people are taking notice.

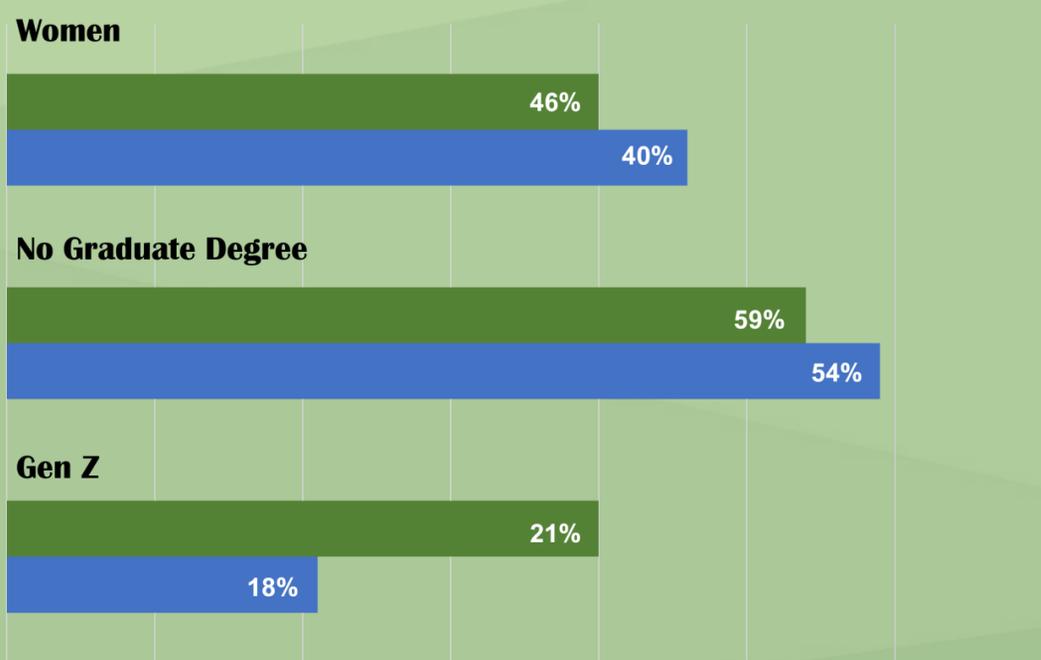

5 Times

46% of remote workers are planning to move to a new location this year because they can now work remotely.

Remote opportunities are more attractive to diverse applicants

On LinkedIn, women, Gen Z, and those without a graduate degree are more likely to apply for remote versus on-site positions.

Specific groups are more interested in seeking remote work

Remote Applicants On-site Applications

How EPC Group Helps in Building a Hybrid Work Model

Transitioning to a hybrid workplace means rewiring your company's processes from the inside out, making sure they work regardless of where they're being utilized. It's one of the toughest challenges a business can undertake, and how you approach that challenge depends on the size and shape of your business.

Whether you're planning to launch a satellite office for a remote team, or moving to a workspace that can quickly scale to meet the changing needs of your company, EPC Group provides inspiring and adaptable workplaces that support your business goals.

Book an Appointment

Source: <https://www.microsoft.com/en-us/worklab/work-trend-index/hybrid-work>